Rashtriya Indian Military College (RIMC) was established on 13 March 1922 in Dehradun, Uttarakhand during British rule. Its original name was Prince of Wales Royal Indian Military College. The purpose of the college was to prepare young Indian boys to become officers in the army.

After Indian Independence in 1947, the college was renamed Rashtriya Indian Military College. Today, it prepares students for entry into the National Defence Academy and the Indian Armed Forces. RIMC is considered one of the most prestigious military schools in India and has produced many senior military officers
